History and Mission of Beta Gamma Sigma Society

The beta gamma sigma society was founded in 1913, making it one of the oldest and most respected business honor societies in the world. It was established to recognize scholastic achievement among business students and to encourage high standards of academic excellence, ethical behavior, and professional leadership. The society's name is derived from the first three Greek letters of the words Business, Government, and Society, emphasizing its commitment to these three pillars of business education. Over the years, beta gamma sigma has expanded globally, now including chapters in hundreds of accredited business schools across more than 190 countries.

Core Mission and Values

The core mission of beta gamma sigma is to encourage and honor academic excellence in business studies and promote lifelong learning and ethical leadership in the business profession. The society emphasizes three fundamental values: scholarship, honor, and service. These ideals guide its activities and the behavior expected of its members. By fostering a community of exceptional business students and professionals, beta gamma sigma aims to create a network of leaders who contribute positively to the global business environment.

Global Reach and Recognition

As an international organization, beta gamma sigma has established itself as a symbol of academic achievement and professional integrity worldwide. Membership is recognized by employers, graduate schools, and professional organizations as a mark of distinction. The society's global network provides members with opportunities to connect with peers and leaders in various industries, further enhancing its influence and value.

Membership Eligibility and Selection Criteria

Membership in the beta gamma sigma society is highly selective and based primarily on academic performance. Only students enrolled in business programs accredited by the AACSB are eligible for consideration. The society offers membership to undergraduate, master's, and doctoral students who rank within the top percentage of their class, reflecting exceptional scholastic achievement.

Undergraduate Membership Requirements

To qualify for membership as an undergraduate student, candidates typically must be in the top 10% of their graduating class. Eligibility usually occurs after completing at least half of the required coursework for their business degree. This ensures that members have demonstrated consistent academic excellence throughout their studies.

Graduate and Doctoral Membership Requirements

For graduate students pursuing a master's degree, the threshold is generally the top 20% of the class. Doctoral candidates who meet the rigorous academic standards of their programs are also eligible for membership. The selection process is administered by individual chapters at accredited institutions, with a focus on maintaining the society's high standards of academic achievement.

Invitation and Acceptance Process

Eligible students receive invitations from their school's beta gamma sigma chapter. Upon acceptance, new members receive a certificate, a key pin, and a membership card. The society also provides an official membership directory and access to exclusive resources. This formal recognition marks the beginning of a lifelong affiliation with the beta gamma sigma community.

Benefits and Opportunities for Members

Membership in the beta gamma sigma society offers a range of benefits designed to support academic, professional, and personal growth. These advantages make it a valuable distinction for business students and graduates seeking to enhance their credentials and career prospects.
