Overview of CASAC Certification

The Certified Alcohol and Substance Abuse Counselor (CASAC) credential is a professional certification in New York State that validates a counselor's expertise in providing treatment and support to individuals struggling with substance use disorders. CASAC certification is regulated by the Office of Addiction Services and Supports (OASAS), ensuring that counselors meet rigorous training and ethical standards. Holding a CASAC credential enhances employment prospects and professional credibility within the addiction treatment community in New York City and beyond.

Importance of CASAC Certification

CASAC certification is recognized statewide as a benchmark for competence in addiction counseling. It equips counselors with the knowledge and skills necessary to conduct assessments, develop treatment plans, and provide effective interventions. Many employers in NYC require or prefer CASAC-certified professionals, making it a critical step for career advancement in behavioral health and substance abuse treatment.

Types of CASAC Credentials

New York State offers several levels of CASAC certifications, including:

- CASAC: The entry-level certification for addiction counselors.
- CASAC-T: For those who provide training and supervision to other counselors.
- CASAC-P: A provisional credential for counselors completing their supervised experience.

Free CASAC training programs typically prepare candidates for the standard CASAC credential.
