Both versions assess the four language skills but differ slightly in the reading and writing sections to reflect different real-life contexts.

IELTS Test Format and Scoring

Test Components

The IELTS exam consists of four key components:

- Listening: Approximately 30 minutes, involving listening to recordings and answering questions.
- Reading: 60 minutes, with passages and questions tailored to either Academic or General Training versions.
- Writing: 60 minutes, requiring completion of two tasks that vary by test type.
- Speaking: 11-14 minutes, involving a face-to-face interview with a certified examiner.

The speaking test may be scheduled on the same day or up to a week before or after the other sections.

Scoring System

IELTS scores range from 0 to 9 for each section, with an overall band score calculated as an average of the four components. Scores are reported in whole and half bands (e.g., 6.5, 7.0). Different institutions and immigration programs require varying minimum band scores, so understanding the scoring criteria is essential for goal setting.

Academic vs. General Training Differences

While the listening and speaking sections are consistent across both versions, the reading and writing components differ:

- Academic Reading and Writing: Focus on academic texts and tasks such as describing graphs and writing essays.
- General Training Reading and Writing: Emphasize everyday workplace and social situations, including letter writing and comprehension of general texts.
