It suggests that strength is not always loud or aggressive; rather, it often manifests through calm determination and inner peace. Quietness refers to a state of mental tranquility and reflection, where one is not easily disturbed by external chaos or pressure. Confidence, on the other hand, is the steady belief in one’s capabilities and judgment without arrogance or doubt.

The Concept of Quietness

Quietness, in this context, is more than silence; it is an intentional practice of mindfulness and emotional regulation. It allows individuals to process their thoughts, avoid impulsive reactions, and respond thoughtfully to situations.
