Historical Background of the Boston Tea Party

The Boston Tea Party was a protest by American colonists against the British government's Tea Act, which granted the British East India Company a monopoly on tea sales in the American colonies. This act was seen by the colonists as another example of taxation without representation. On the night of December 16, 1773, a group of colonists disguised as Mohawk Indians boarded three British ships docked in Boston Harbor and dumped 342 chests of tea into the water. This act of rebellion escalated tensions between Britain and the American colonies, eventually leading to the American Revolutionary War.
