In many jurisdictions, such videos may be classified as child pornography if the student is under the age of consent, resulting in severe criminal penalties for the teacher and any parties involved in disseminating the material. Even where the student is of legal age, the relationship may violate laws related to abuse of authority or professional conduct.

Criminal Charges and Penalties

Teachers found engaging in sexual activities with students can face a range of criminal charges, including statutory rape, sexual exploitation, and possession of illicit content.
