Questions in this category ask test-takers to identify the central theme or main idea of a passage and distinguish supporting details that reinforce that idea. Understanding how ideas are structured within a text is essential for answering these questions correctly.

Inference and Conclusion

These questions require candidates to make logical inferences based on the information provided, drawing conclusions that may not be explicitly stated. Critical thinking and careful reading are necessary to interpret subtleties in the text.

Vocabulary in Context

Test-takers often encounter questions asking for the meaning of words or phrases as used within the passage. Context clues within the sentence or surrounding text must be analyzed to determine the correct definition.
