Educational Philosophy and Approach

The Windward Child Development Center adopts a holistic educational philosophy centered on fostering the whole child's development. Recognizing that early childhood is a critical period for brain growth, the center implements evidence-based practices that support cognitive, social, emotional, and physical development. The approach emphasizes play-based learning, encouraging children to explore their environment creatively and independently.

Child-Centered Learning

At the core of the Windward Child Development Center's philosophy is child-centered learning, which prioritizes each child's interests, strengths, and developmental needs. This method enables personalized instruction and flexible activities that adapt to varying learning styles. Educators guide children in discovering new concepts while promoting problem-solving and critical thinking skills.

Social and Emotional Development

Understanding the importance of social and emotional skills, the center integrates programs that cultivate empathy, cooperation, and self-regulation. Children engage in group activities that build communication skills and foster positive relationships with peers and adults. This focus prepares children for successful transitions to formal schooling.

Programs and Curriculum

The Windward Child Development Center offers a range of programs tailored to different age groups and developmental stages. These programs combine structured learning with free play to optimize learning outcomes and maintain children's engagement. The curriculum aligns with national early childhood education standards and incorporates diverse learning domains.

Infant and Toddler Program

This program supports the youngest learners by providing a nurturing environment that encourages sensory exploration, language acquisition, and motor skill development. Activities are designed to promote secure attachments and responsive caregiving, which are essential for healthy brain development.

Preschool Curriculum

For preschool-aged children, the curriculum focuses on foundational skills in literacy, math, science, and the arts. The program integrates thematic units and hands-on activities that stimulate curiosity and cognitive growth. Emphasis is placed on developing fine and gross motor skills through active play and creative expression.

After-School Enrichment

The center also offers after-school enrichment programs that provide extended learning opportunities and support working families. These programs include homework assistance, arts, physical activities, and social skill development.
